PREFACE.

The present publication contains not only a General Catalogue of the Alumni of the College, but also lists of the members of the Board of Trustees of Hampden-Sidney College, of the Presidents, of the members of the Faculty and other officers, and of those upon whom honorary degrees have been conferred. It is hoped that these lists are accurate and complete, as they are drawn from the minutes of the Board of Trustees, which are extant in unbroken succession from 1775 to the present date.

The first General Catalogue of Hampden-Sidney College was issued in the year 1857, together with the Annual Catalogue of that session. This catalogue, the work of Professor Charles Martin, A. M., gave the names of those to whom the degree of A. B. had been regularly awarded in course, as well as the names of those upon whom honorary degrees had been conferred; appended to each name was an initial, indicating the profession, as lawyer, minister, or physician. This catalogue was brought up to date and re-issued in the year 1867. The lists thus given are continuous from 1786 to 1867, with the exception of the years 1792, 1793, 1794, 1795, 1804, 1805, 1816, 1817, 1818, 1819; for these years no graduates were on record, due either to the imperfection of the records, or, it may well be, to the fact that there had been no graduates in these years, falling, as they do, in periods of great depression. Again, from 1863 to 1866 inclusive, there were no graduates, the students having left the college halls for the field as soon as they reached the proper age for military service.

In the present General Catalogue, the attempt has been made to cover a wider field and to give the names, so far as they can now be found, of all who have been in attendance on the College at any time. Owing to the regrettable imperfection of the College records, such attempt can meet with only a very partial success. It is believed that the names here recorded fall in number some 1,500 below the proper figure, the number of names on these lists, up to the year 1821, being about 500, whereas President Cushing, upon his inauguration in that year, stated that the attendance at the College had been more than 1,500; for the earliest period alone then, it appears that some 1,000 names are lacking. Again, in the period from 1830 to 1847, a like defect in the records exists, and must involve a proportionate diminution in the numbers as now known.

In addition to the General Catalogue mentioned above, certain other sources are available. The Library of the College contains catalogues for the sessions 1821-22 to 1828-29, the session 1833-34, and a complete file from the session of 1848-49 to the present. It seems clear that no catalogues were issued before the time of Cushing, 1821-1835, and that the publication, which was suspended after his death, was not resumed until the presidency of Lewis W. Green, beginning with the session of 1848-49. For the sessions not covered by existing catalogues, dependence must be placed upon the printed rolls of the literary societies—that of the Union Society, extending from 1789 to 1856—that of the Philanthropic, from 1807 to 1851. The roll of the former is complete, with the exception of the years 1797, 1798, and 1799; in the case of the latter, but one year is missing, 1814.

It should be noted that the rolls of the Philanthropic Society make no distinction between honorary members and those that were regular students of the College, and it is to be feared that some names of honorary members have been here given as those of regularly matriculated students, the information at hand being in certain cases insufficient to decide the point positively. It is probable that a few errors of this kind have crept into the text, which, while much to be regretted, have yet been unavoidable. A small number of names have been obtained from family histories, and a few have been supplied from memory by residents of the county of Prince Edward. It will thus be seen that, for the first half of the life of the College, the sources of information are both scanty and unsatisfactory. It may, however, yet be possible to gather, even at this late date, much information about the students of the earlier years, but not without prolonged and arduous effort, the data, if indeed they be still existent, being widely scattered in various books, files of early newspapers, and in the waning memories of the oldest inhabitants.

The aim has been to give in this catalogue the name of every student of the College, from the opening of Hampden-Sidney Academy, in 1776, down to the class of 1906, inclusive. The classification is:

(1) By class years.

(2) By places of residence in the case of the alumni now living.

(3) Alphabetically.

Invaluable aid has been afforded by the rough draft of a catalogue, compiled, it is believed, by the Rev. T. W. Hooper, D. D., of the Board of Trustees. The names appearing in this manuscript catalogue are drawn from the sources mentioned above, and in the notes appended to the various names is incorporated a large amount of information collected, it is said, by Mr. Charles Van Woodson, whose work was done about the year 1880, at the instance of President J. M. P. Atkinson.

In the States of Virginia and West Virginia, the classification is by cities and counties; elsewhere by State alone. The attempt is made to give the name in full; degrees received from this College or from other institutions of learning; profession; positions of trust or honor, civil, military, educational, or other; war service, with commissioned rank, if any; present occupation; present residence, if in a city, with street and number; in case of death, date and place of death are given, when known.

With regard to the classification by "class years," a few words of explanation may not be superfluous. It is, of course, impossible to class accurately those students whose names have been obtained from the rolls of the literary societies, and, in consequence, an arbitrary method of classification was adopted for such students. They are treated as if they had joined the society in their freshman years, and are thus found under the caption of the class graduated four years later.

While such a method must involve error in many cases, such error is of little consequence, as the one known fact, year of joining the society, will be found in the date preceding the name. Students classified as "irregular" in the catalogue, have been placed after the roll of that class in whose Freshman year their names appear for the first time. In the case of students whose courses have been irregular for a time, the names are to be found with the class of which such students were, for a year or more, regular members. Where a double date is given, the years are those of entering and leaving the College, without regard to a possible intermission of residence, which was not infrequent in the case of those that left to enter the army during the period of the war between the States. If a student has, for any reason, been a member of more than one class, his name will be found on the roll of the later class. To save space, certain abbreviations have been used: Where the word "minister" occurs, tout court, it is to be understood as indicating a minister of the Presbyterian Church, ministers of other churches being suitably designated, as minister, Epis., etc. Va. Leg., means a member of the House of Delegates of Virginia, and so for other States; "U. S. H. R.," means member of the House of Representatives of the United States; and "C. S. H. R.," member of the House of Representatives of the Confederate States; "C. S. A.," marks the privates or non-commissioned officers in the service of the Confederate States of America, commissioned officers in that service being designated by their respective ranks, so far as could be ascertained; "H. S. Boys" marks the names of those who were members of the student company organized May 28, 1861, with Rev. J. M. P. Atkinson, President of the College, as captain, mustered into service in June, 1861, and captured at Rich Mountain, Va., (now W. Va.,) July, 11, 1861, ten days before the battle of Bull Run; this College is indicated by the letters "H. S. C.;" other colleges by the usual abbreviations.

Such other abbreviations as are employed, will, it is believed, be readily understood without specific explanation.

On pages 171 and 172 is given a summary, setting forth, in compact form, the record of the alumni as a body. This table shows that the College has furnished to the several States, and to the country at large, a number of men conspicuous for ability and public service, and that, in view of the average attendance, it has given a remarkably large number of men to the several learned professions. The war record is, perhaps, the most noteworthy feature of this table; while every effort that the time at command would permit has been made to render this part of the record complete, it is recognized that the numbers, both of officers and of privates, fall far short of the correct total. On a later page will be found a diagram, presenting graphically the numbers in attendance for each session from that of 1848-49 to that of 1905-06. This diagram brings out in striking fashion several points of interest: a sudden rise in attendance, following the advent of each president; the abrupt and excessive decline during the war between the States, (but sudden and hard as was this blow, it did not cause the College to cease its work and close its doors); a rapid rise in the attendance immediately after the close of the war, abruptly checked, apparently, by the troubles of the Reconstruction Period; the period of financial depression from 1892 to 1896, sharply and clearly marked by a steady decline.

The writer would here render grateful thanks to all those, too numerous to permit of individual mention, who, in various ways, have afforded valuable aid in the preparation and publication of this catalogue; especially are thanks due to Capt. W. Gordon McCabe, Richmond, Va.; Hon. E. C. Venable, Petersburg, Va.; Dr. J. D. Eggleston, Worsham, Va.; Maj. A. R. Venable, Hampden-Sidney, Va.; Dr. Alfred J. Morrison, Hampden-Sidney, Va.; and Prof. Wm. H. Whiting, Jr., Hampden-Sidney, Va., for reading over the names of the earlier period and adding much valuable information; and to President J. Gray McAllister for his indefatigable work in collecting information from many sources. Grateful acknowledgment is also due Dr. W. M. Holladay, Prof. J. H. C. Winston, and Mr. R. K. Brock, all of Hampden-Sidney, Va., for aid in making out the alphabetical index.

While vigilance has been used in compiling the lists of names and in transcribing the information received, it is much to be feared that the haste with which the matter has been put through the press, has caused some unavoidable omissions and many errors, typographical as well as biographical. The reader is therefore urgently requested to note such errors and to report them to the undersigned or to the president of the College, to the end that the correction may be made in the next edition.

Incomplete and imperfect though it necessarily be, it is hoped that the publication may prove of value in stimulating a deeper interest in the body of alumni, setting forth as it does, to a notable degree, the fine record of their Alma Mater, by indicating to the public at large what may be done, and has been done, by this "small college," and by serving as the foundation, at some future time, of a more comprehensive, more accurate, definitive catalogue.

NOTICE.

In this catalogue information about the services of the alumni in the War between the States has, of necessity, been given in the briefest and most condensed form. It is designed to issue in the future, when the material has been collected and the circumstances seem to warrant the issue, a special bulletin giving these services in detail. With this design in view, each reader is earnestly asked to send to the editor all information about the alumni that he may be able to furnish, concerning either himself or others. The following points should be stated distinctly and in detail: (1), full name; (2), date and place of enlistment, with name of company and regiment; (3), names of other commands joined, with successive ranks, commissioned or non-commissioned; (4), if wounded, when and where; (5), if captured, when and where, place of imprisonment, when and where exchanged or paroled; (6), date and place of surrender, date of final parole; (7), any incidents or adventures of especial interest.

Such a publication would be of interest and value; the time is now late for the collecting of this information, and it will be more difficult to obtain as the years pass. Whether this is to be undertaken or not, depends upon the support that the alumni shall give to the present catalogue.

The editor will be glad to receive the names and addresses of all who can give information on these points.
